

Navjot Narula, MD, MBS, is an Assistant Professor of Clinical Family Medicine and the Associate Program Director for the Family Medicine Residency at Cooper University Health Care. A lifelong resident of New Jersey, Dr. Narula earned his medical degree from St. George's University and completed his residency training at Rutgers Robert Wood Johnson at CentraState.

Dr. Narula is a firm believer in the versatility of primary care and its power to transform community health. His professional interests include advancing the quality of care through resident education, healthcare policy, and the strategic use of clinical informatics. Outside of the clinic, he is an avid traveler and a dedicated fan of live music and his vinyl collection. He resides in the Philadelphia area with his wife and two children, where he enjoys exploring new cuisines and the local food scene.